This is correct. The pot tax money distribution is directed by statute and the constitution and then based upon the individual allocation/distribution methods within each individual grant/program.

Denver actually does receive pot money:

	School Bullying Prevention and Education Grant		School DropOut Prevention Grant		Early Literacy Grant Program		School Health Professional Grant Program				Rural Districts
District	2017	2018	2017	2018	2017	2018	2015	2016	2017	2018	2018	GRAND TOTAL
DENVER COUNTY 1	273,739	427,654	139,292	276,825	67,678	360,158	-	-	130,928	1,093,329	-	$ 2,769,603

Hi Jennifer,

Wanted to run this one past you. I would say that the pot tax money distribution is directed by statute and the constitution, right?

This is all explained on this webpage:

Jeremy
Hope you're well.
As expected, so many people still ask, "What about all that pot money?" when the issue of the Denver Teachers strike comes up.
So, we're gonna write a shorty that takes that one head-on.

So....
From your world....why can't Denver use any of the marijuana tax money distributed through the funds allotted to Dept of Ed? (the discretionary stuff, that is)
